

People Connect

According to a recent study by the Mental Health Commission of Canada, mental illness costs Canadian employers approximately $20 billion annually and is rapidly becoming one of employers' most pressing issues, due to its significant impact on disability, absenteeism and lost productivity.

1 in 5 Canadians will experience a mental health issue this year¹

every week 500,000 Canadians will miss work because of mental health issues¹

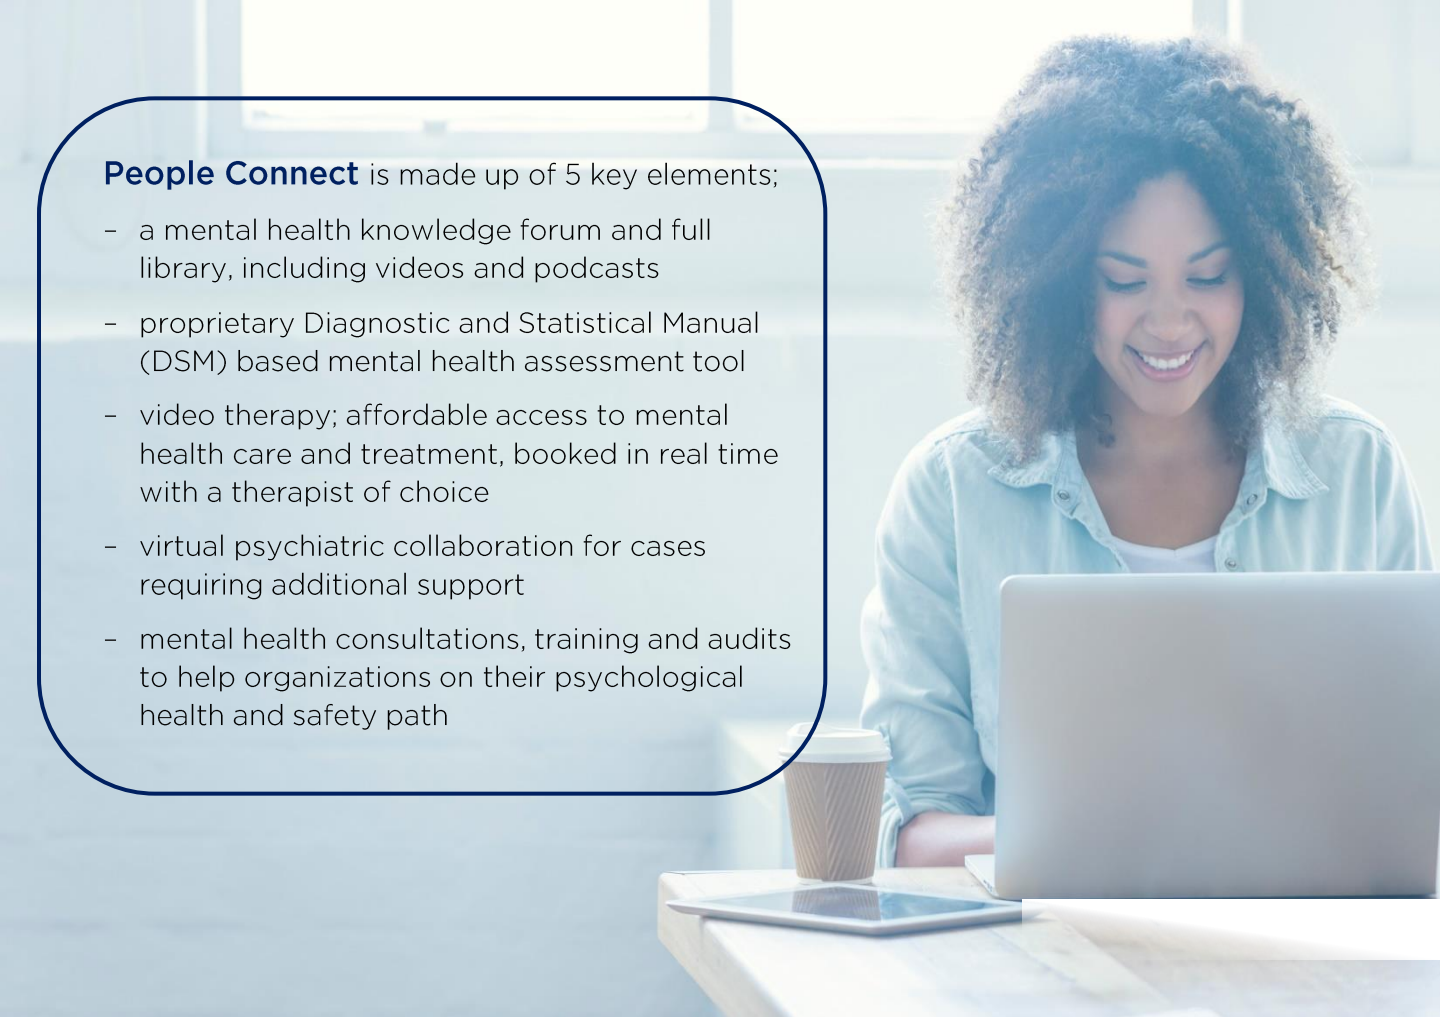

49% of those who feel they suffer from anxiety or depression have never seen a doctor¹

The stigma, lack of accessibility and costs associated with mental-health issues present serious barriers, not only to diagnosis and treatment, but also to employee engagement and productivity in the workplace.

People Corporation has taken a strategic approach to managing employee mental well-being through targeted mental health intervention, helping organizations manage the cost of mental illness, while enabling employees to access the care they need.
